EXTRAS YOU WILL NEED

We have a number of optional extras available with the list growing every day. However, there are a few essential items you will need to complete the conversion of your Rhino Buggies kit.

Essential items you will need to complete your conversion

- Universal joints for steering column from a Nissan Pulsar
- Aftermarket air conditioner/heating unit
- Complete lighting kit (the one supplied is not ADR approved)
- Battery and radiator brackets will need to be made or purchased
- Steering spline which can be supplied by Rhino Buggies

NISSAN PATROL DONOR VEHICLES

It is recommended that the Hammer replacement body is fitted to a 1988-1998 Long or Short Wheel Base GQ Model Nissan Patrol. The MQ model can also be used as a donor vehicle. However, this is a leaf sprung model where the GQ is coil sprung giving a better ride. Sourcing a currently registered Nissan Patrol will make your registration process easier. We recommend that you avoid sourcing a written-off donor vehicle at all costs. Refer to our website for more information about donor vehicles.

BUILD YOUR HAMMER

Simply throw away your Nissan Patrol body. Line up the pre-drilled holes and bolt on the Hammer replacement body to your chassis. All the mechanicals from your Nissan Patrol including the steering column, pedals, speedometer pod, sun visors, seats and wiring loom will be used when you build your Hammer.

Your Hammer comes complete with a build manual.

REGISTER YOUR HAMMER

Hammers are successfully being registered in every state in Australia (South Australia to be confirmed). We insist you check with your local state traffic authority to discuss your Hammer conversion before commencing as Rhino Buggies accepts no responsibility for changes to registration rules and regulations. Rhino Buggies can supply a detailed engineers report to assist in the registration process. As the Hammer body is of steel construction, registration of the conversion should be fairly straight forward and will fall under the 're-bodied chassis' or 'individually constructed vehicle' category.

COMPLETED COSTS

A basic conversion can be achieved for under $35,000 including the Hammer replacement body, Nissan Patrol purchase and your DIY conversion. However this price depends on many variables.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Rhino Buggies accepts no responsibility for the registration of any vehicle. It is the responsibility of the owner to ensure that the built vehicle meets all state and local authority requirements. In the event that any vehicle cannot be registered, Rhino Buggies will not be held liable.
